BLACK AND WHITE: Graystar Trailers' strong client base is proof of its refrigeration products' premium quality.

Graystar's hot on premium cartage trail

GRAYSTAR Trailers began operations in early 2009.

The company was established by David and Samantha Gray.

David has close to 30 years experience in the vehicle manufacturing industry.

The team at Graystar Trailers has collectively more than 100 years of experience.

Graystar Trailers' core business is refrigerated semi trailers.

David says saw an opening in the market for a premium product that will stand up to Australian conditions.

David acquired the services of Roger Wiltshire, who had semi retired.

Roger has extensive knowledge of the trailer industry and suppliers, and a close association with many clients.

His engineering skills and knowledge of laminated panel constructions have also proved invaluable.

A highly experienced team was hand picked for the workshop, a very high standard of workmanship one of the main prerequisites.

Trailers are built to the same exacting standards that David has always been known for.

Having built the business from scratch, though, has allowed Graystar to initiate new concepts that are letting them raise the bar higher.

The use of premium, high-quality insulation in its construction makes a Graystar trailer ideal for the harsh Australian climate.

While custom-built, refrigerated, semi trailers are Graystar Trailers' niche, the design and construction of dry-freight trailers is also in progress.

Laminated-panel construction and sales are also becoming a large part of the business.

The process of construction and the lightweight materials used are in high demand for manufacturers of high-quality fifth wheelers, motor homes and more.

While it is still early days for Graystar Trailers, the future is looking bright.

Already a strong client base has been established, with new clients being added on a regular basis.

"Graystar Trailers: we may not be the cheapest but we aim to be the best".
